Distance Education and E-Learning is a modern concept program of academic training addressed to different categories of consumers interested in academic training and continuous professional improvement or professional reconversion.

From a methodological point of view Distance Education and E-Learning is a concept that requires an approach different from the classical ones to education and studying in general involving the efficient turning to account of different channels of communication available for each student (mail, telephone, fax, internet, radio, TV).

Beginning with 1998, the Lucian Blaga University of Sibiu has promoted and developed this new format of higher-education. We have by now acquired quite a lot of significant experience at institutional level for both direct and indirect participants in it (students, teaching staff, clerical and technical personnel). The students enrolled in the Distance Education Programs at LBUS benefit from a functional structure that assures the high-quality of their education and training.

There is no difference either in the quality of education or in the level of the degree graduates get from Distance Education Programmes. They benefit from the same rights and have the same professional obligations that regular students and graduates have.
